Information and Privacy Commissioner to release special report about how government manages privacy breaches

VICTORIA — On Wednesday, Jan. 28, 2015, at 9:30 a.m., B.C. Information and Privacy Commissioner Elizabeth Denham will release a special report entitled, An Examination of BC Government's Privacy Breach Management.

The Commissioner is releasing the report on this date to mark international Data Privacy Day, which takes place Jan. 28 of each year.

The report examines the current breach management policies, procedures and training within the provincial government, including a review of more than 300 privacy breach reviews completed by government's central breach management agency.

An Examination of BC Government's Privacy Breach Management will be available for download at 9:30 a.m. at: <http://www.oipc.bc.ca/report/special-reports>

A news release will be issued summarizing the report.
